The participants of Boys Run I toowú klatseen finished their 3rd season in Sitka with a final 5K run on December 10th, 2016.

The run was a success, despite below freezing temperatures! This after-school program for boys in 3rd-5th grade focuses on healthy social and emotional life skills, and 26 boys participated this fall at Keet Gooshi Heen Elementary School. Participants learned about "inner strength" and worked on setting goals for themselves, such as completing an entire 5K run!

Each year we measure the impact of the program through pre- and post-season surveys. This year, boys reported a 24% decrease in agreement with the statement "I believe boys should be tough," and a 10% increase in the statement "I know how to disagree without starting a fight or an argument" with 100% of boys agreeing or strongly agreeing by the end of the season.

Similar increases of around 10% were seen for having an adult the boys could talk to about things that are bothering them, believing in the importance of helping their community, and appreciating the differences that make people special.

One parent said, "Boys Run is an important program because it teaches boys to be courageous and kind." The program is also implemented in Ju-
Sitka Youth Leadership Committee (SYLC)

The Sitka Youth Leadership has many exciting projects underway for the 2016-2017 year. The group, comprised of students from both Mount Edgecumbe and Sitka High, aims to promote teen voices and bridge the gap that exists between the Sitka High Schools.

This year, SYLC is pursuing three major projects: becoming peer educators to work in classrooms, promoting the soon-to-be-released SYLC documentary, and posting local teen stories and experiences to social media in the mold of “Humans of New York.”

In weekly meetings and monthly planning retreats, we have mapped out project goals and strategies, and are excited to begin executing them. We also just completed a major campaign against Teen Dating Violence, since February is Teen DV awareness month. In radio PSA, newspaper ads, social media posts, online videos, and school announcements, we aimed to educate our peers about healthy relationships.

Glacier Bay Kayak Expedition

The Sitka National Historical Park, Alaska Geographic, and SAFV are organizing a kayak expedition for high-school aged youth in Glacier Bay National Park and Preserve.

Using the REBOUND curriculum, students will learn healthy relationship and leadership skills while exploring the rich natural and cultural heritage of the park while also becoming experts in backcountry camping and travel.

The trip will take place from June 2-9 and is open to students from Sitka, Kake, Angoon, Hoonah, and Gustavus. For more information and an application go to https://www.nps.gov/sitk/index.htm or www.safv.org. Applications are due April 7th.

SAFV News—Thank You All for a Great Family Fiesta

We want to thank all who made our annual Family Fiesta dinner and dessert auction at the ANB Founders Hall a great fundraising success. Thanks to ANB camp #1 and ANS camp #4 for providing this wonderful space.

Sea Mart and Sitka Sound Seafoods were our primary sponsors, and we received food donations from the Mt. Edgecumbe High School kitchen, Steve Warren, and McDonald’s. Many bakers and dessert makers donated their art, among them Blatchley Middle School students in Ms. Ferrency’s class during Discovery Your Potential Week. That was awesome. Ken Fate was our auctioneer, and Julie Schmitts, Ted Howard, and Kamrie Daniels provided live music. Karin Mullins dominated in the kitchen, with her long-time crew of Grace Brooks, Bridget Hitchcock, Charlie Morgan, and Tina Bachmeier.

Other volunteers were Mary and Dave Levesque, Karen Boyer, Larry Edwards, Jim Clare, Angie Wisniewski, Steve Hutchinson, Julia Tawney, Grace Heidel, and Mt. Edgecumbe students Hayleigh Johansen, Sierra Fetts, Hayley Ragnitsen, and Jasmine Woods. Amanda Capitummino was our photographer. We extend our heartfelt thanks to our volunteers, donors, all who attended, and particularly to those who bid on the delightful desserts.

Thank you and Guna’cheesh.

The Sitka Domestic Violence Task Force has been meeting for a long time. It is a group of citizens and professionals who meet monthly to talk about needs and resources for victims and survivors, offer education, exchange information, and build relationships.

Last year the group decided to offer a quarterly educational event for survivors, their friends and family members, professionals, and concerned citizens alike. Our goal is to make sessions accessible and more conversational than a formal training.

Supported by a Title III grant UAS received from the U.S. Department of Education, we enjoy the energetic support of UAS staff members Chris Washko, Deb Corso, Audrey Beam, and Samantha Hoffman.

DVTF member Rev. Julie Platson offered the meeting room at St. Peter’s See House, and it turned out to be the perfect venue. We very much enjoy the hospitality we are experiencing and extend our thanks and appreciation to the entire congregation.

Our recent conversation on March 7 was moderated by therapist Debi Terry, MS LPC-S, who shared stories and experiences about her work with survivors of trauma caused by interpersonal and sexual violence.

We learned that behaviors that don’t seem to make any sense become totally logical if viewed from the accumulated experiences of a person who might have a totally different life history than we. We learned that people might regress to and be stuck in stages of their childhood when they experienced severe trauma. We also learned that diagnoses like ADD, ADHD, and ODD* might actually be manifestations of earlier traumatic experiences, and not mental disorders. The survey results of the participants showed that almost everyone learned a lot.

We thank Debi for her engaging and very informative gift of stories and interactions. We all walked away after a grounding exercise that we were encouraged to use with ourselves and others who might need a practice to calm down. We will treasure and share the handouts on this technique Debi provided.

Please keep your eyes and ears open for the next Crucial Conversation in June. Call Martina at 747-3370 if you have any questions or suggestions.

I can remember, as a young boy, the excitement I felt every time I learned that we’d be going to Grandma and Grandpa’s in Clovis. It was such a magical experience that I even enjoyed the drive. I memorized every turn and landmark along the way. I could hardly stand it as we turned off of Minnewawa ave. and into the mobile home park. A short drive through the narrow streets and we were there. I know we would get to enjoy playing Tiddlywinks, Yahtzee, wiffle ball, and so much more.

When they decided to move to Oregon, I was greatly disappointed because I thought the magical feeling of going to their house would be gone. I soon realized, however, that I couldn’t be more wrong. Not only did that feeling exist but it was magnified. Their house on Brush Creek rd. came to represent one of the most wondrous places on the planet. Exploring the creek, long walks up and down logging roads and through fields, picking berries, games of badminton and Rummikub. We indulged in all kinds of cookies. Life in Oregon was good and I always looked forward to my next visit to this enchanted world.

As I grew older I began to realize what it was that made all of these places so special. You see, a house isn’t special. Games and cookies are not magical. Logging roads and creeks are just a way for someone or something to get from one place to another. It’s the people who come alongside of you during these times that make the experiences seem like they have a life of their own. There are many people that helped make the experiences special to me, but the one who had the greatest impact was Grandma Jean.

Grandma loved people and she understood what it took to make others feel loved. What was it about playing Rummikub and badminton with her, or eating her homemade cookies, that made us feel so loved? I recently realized that it was not about the THINGS she did with us, but it was all about the WAY she did these things with us. It was her enthusiasm to spend time with us that made us feel special. I NEVER, not one time, felt like she had more important things to do than play silly games with us grandkids. She never gave us the idea that she was just squeezing us into her busy day to appease us. She sacrificed her time, yet never made us feel she was sacrificing. I truly believed, and still do, that she WANTED to play with us. It was important to her because we were important to her.

Eating watermelon under a tree, long walks down dusty roads, simple games, making everything seem so special. She invested in people in the most profound way possible: she spent time with them. As I grew older I began to realize what it was that made all of these places so special. You see, a

April is Sexual Assault Awareness Month—Support Survivors!

You know a Survivor

You might be the first person someone tells immediately after being sexually assaulted. A survivor might also wait weeks, months, or even years to share what happened. Both are common reactions. If someone you know tells you their story, here are examples of supportive things you can say:

I believe you. Thank you for telling me. It wasn’t your fault. You did nothing wrong. I am here for you. You are brave. You are never alone. How can I help?

You are a survivor

Everyone heals in their own time and their own way, and the path isn’t always a straight line. You don’t need to do it alone — you can:

- Read or share messages of encouragement here: #SupportSurvivors
- Join an online survivor group*
- Call SAFV at 747-3370

For Community Members

Sexual violence undermines the values of strong communities. Online comments that blame victims contribute to a broader climate in which sexual violence is tolerated and not taken seriously.

Help end rape culture by taking action online:

- Believe and support survivors. For example, thank survivors for sharing their stories in the comments.
- Respond to victim-blaming, rape jokes, or other problematic comments on social media: - Post a response like, “Sexual assault is never the survivor’s fault.” - Refocus accountability on the individual(s) who committed sexual abuse.
- Link to an educational resource about sexual violence prevention that you can find at nsvrc.org/publications.
- Promote Sexual Assault Awareness Month using the hashtag #SAAM. Sample tweet: April is Sexual Assault Awareness Month #SAAM. Find out how you can use your voice to change the culture: www.nsvrc.org/saam
